

I do not want copy-protection embedded into my TVs (nor any of my other equipment). No technology is perfect, and attempts to legislate morality with regulations like this will not work. Punish the offenders; do not assume that we are all lawbreakers. Enforcement of this regulation will only require additional resources in an already tight government budget. Let the entertainment industry go after the lawbreakers.